Paris, S'il Vous Plaît

This month we introduce our newest contest, one where the best of the best will join each other on a six day-five night trip to see the beauty that lies in Paris. Visit the Eifel tower; relax to a dish of French Crème Brûlée; come face to face with the Mona Lisa at the Louvre Museum. This will be the trip of a lifetime. Turn to page 10 for contest details.

I would like to remind you of the hard work, dedication, stamina and endurance that must be exerted to join us in France. For any reward there is always a price to pay. However, if you're debating just how much you're willing to give, consider the underlying principles we embody at AIL/NILICO.

Martin Luther King Jr. said, "Human progress is neither automatic nor inevitable... Every step toward the goal of justice requires sacrifice, suffering, and struggle; the tireless exertions and passionate concern of dedicated individuals."

Dedicate yourself to the goals you want to accomplish. The sacrifices and struggles that you will encounter are stepping stones as you continue to climb to success. Do not let obstacles halt your efforts to succeed. Use them as learned lessons, inspiration and motivation.

The bonuses and contests that are offered each year are rewards for your hard work and dedication. And, while monetary success is a common goal we all share, I invite you to look at the most rewarding and fundamental part of your position: to be a liaison to working families in need.

With each family you help, you are one step closer to reaching your goals. Let these words of encouragement fuel you as we begin our contest in October. We are anxious to see what shining stars will accompany us in the City of Lights.

Here's some food for thought that is proven true time and time again, "When you think big, you control your own destiny."

Bon appétit!

American Income Life Insurance Company has been meeting working families' needs for over half a century. We are a leader in the union insurance market and are totally committed to meeting the needs of union members through personal one-on-one service and complete Home Office customer support. You can count on AIL to do what it says it will do.

Senior Vice President of Field Operations

Agency Director of the Month

Leaders growing leaders!
Domenico Bertini

Domenic effectively leads with passion and enthusiasm. The continued growth of his territory is the result of his excellent leadership skills.

Don't Worry... Be Happy!

The economic slowdown has many people worrying about the long-term fate of their "life plans" and the short-term fate of their careers. In the business world certain leaders are wondering "If I worry, or focus too much on what could go wrong, is that the reality I create?"

What's wrong with worrying?

When "worry thoughts" occupy our minds, we let negative thinking determine our future. Besides adversely affecting our health and relationships, worry keeps us focused on what we don't want. When we worry, our brains are actually in a state of "fight or flight", incapable of determining what we want or unable to remain receptive to creative ideas.

Let's be clear. Calmly acknowledging what is or what could possibly go wrong is very different than worrying and focusing only on what could go wrong.

How to change your thinking?

The first step to break free from worrying is to become aware of how you are feeling as you obsess on what could go wrong. Is your heart rate elevated? Is your neck or gut tight? Your forehead furrowed? Using your feelings as key indicators, you'll notice that when you worry you don't feel at peace and when you think powerfully, you feel at peace and inspired.

What we think is a matter of choice. So when we worry, we always have the choice to choose thoughts that deactivate "fight or flight" thoughts and new motivation will move us in a direction that serves our purpose. The next time you catch yourself worrying, try this:

- Notice that you have slipped into a "fight, flight or freeze" mode.
- Name your thoughts and separate the positive from the negative. (For example, "There go my worry thoughts," or "Here come my scared-out-of-my-mind thoughts, again.")

- Exhale as much as you can, then take a deep breath.

- Ask yourself, "What can I think, say or do in this moment that's for the greater good?" (The greater good can be the example you are setting, the culture you want to create, the development of the people you serve as a leader or the short- and long-term well being of the company. When you ask the question, the answer will come to you.)

- Re-invoke the state of wonder. Ask yourself questions that bring about wonder and possibility: If you could change the situation, what would it look like? How can you be prepared? If something has gone wrong, what can you do to fix it? How can you stay on course? How can you change the course? How can you be of highest and best service to your customers, suppliers, employees and investors?

Powerful thoughts keep us in a state of vision and possibility, moving us in the direction of what we want, even in the most difficult times. When we practice managing our thoughts, we find inspiration and piece. It is then that the ideas on how to handle or transcend difficulty shine through and we know the right thing to do. It is then that we achieve significant results.

Always remember that in our role as leaders, it is our responsibility to provide an inspiring vision for others to move toward.

Always remember Proverbs 29:18

"Where there is no vision, the people perish; but he that keepeth the law, happy is he. "

Keep your thoughts positive. It sure beats the alternative.

May God bless you.

New Zealand is on board!

Some of New Zealand's top leaders joined forces at a manager's meeting to discuss new leadership ideas and techniques! Bravo to all who attended!

The manager's meeting held in New Zealand was a milestone. All of our attendees will no doubt be some of the greatest leaders ALL has ever produced. Dominico did a terrific job educating our people by showing them what they need to go to the next level. The positive feedback from our team hasn't stopped since the meeting. It is wonderful how much the company cares by sending the masters in leadership to the other side of the world to help us be the best we can be!

Congratulations to our New SGA!

Robert Gray

Congratulations to our New Director!

I'd like to thank my wife, Begoña. This achievement is as much hers as it is mine. I then want to thank my first SGA Eric Giglione, Theodore Pappas, and "The NYC crew" run by the top leaders Lleison Martinez, Levar Morgan and Jason Bratin. Lastly I want to personally thank Steve Liberto, who has been my mentor since the day I started. Steve, you really taught me what "Blind Faith" means. If it weren't for your belief in me during the early days, I probably wouldn't be here today.

To those aspiring to reach the top, I would like to mention a quote from the book Who Moved My Cheese. There is a line that says, "What would you do if you weren't afraid?" My answer is: become an SGA!

2009 marks my 20th year in sales management and recruiting. I feel extremely fortunate to have been given the opportunity to join the American Income Life Team. What attracted me the most was the outstanding character and integrity of ALL's executive leadership team and I now look forward to working under their direction in serving the SGA community.

I received my BA from the University of New Hampshire, was a member of the varsity football team and married my college girlfriend. Paula and I have been together for 25 years, we have two children, Jackson and Michaela, age 13 and 10 respectively. My passion is coaching youth football and I am a strong advocate for community youth mentoring programs. Mentoring is a self-fulfilling prophecy "you get what you give" with the ultimate goal of helping influence our kids to be great teammates, students, citizens and leaders. As coaches and mentors we have a responsibility to help create a foundation that teaches: hard work will be rewarded, preparation is key to success and TEAM comes first.

■ Direction

Debbie Enstedt
Vice President of Public
Relations Field Operations

Arlene Holt Baker (running for executive vice president) and Liz Shuler (running for secretary-treasurer) are elected as they run on an unopposed slate.

John J. Sweeney was elected president of the AFL-CIO at the federation's biennial convention in October 1995 and has been re-elected three times since. At the time of his election, he was serving his fourth four-year term as president of SEIU, which grew from 625,000 to 1.1 million members under his leadership. An AFL-CIO vice president since 1980, Sweeney was born May 5, 1934, in Bronx, N.Y.

His trade union career began as a research assistant with the Ladies Garment Workers. In 1960, he joined SEIU as a contract director for New York City Local 32B. He went on to become union president and to lead two citywide strikes of apartment maintenance workers. In 1980, he was elected president of the International. Sweeney is the author of America Needs A Raise: Fighting for Economic Security and Social Justice.

We wish him the very best in his well deserved retirement. John Sweeney has left his mark in History.

Roger, Denise and Jules will hear from President Obama at the convention. The AFL-CIO Web site states that President Barack Obama will be addressing the AFL-CIO convention in Pittsburgh and is marking a major shift in the relationship between the union movement and the White House. For the past eight years, the Bush administration waged war on America's workers, and union members took a big step toward taking back America by playing a major role in electing President Obama and a Democrat-controlled Congress.

And what should be an emotional moment, the delegates will hear from Caroline Kennedy, the niece of the late Sen. Edward Kennedy, on September 14. Caroline Kennedy will be the featured speaker on a day that the convention focuses on organizing and building political strength. Her uncle introduced the Employee Free Choice Act in the Senate and was a lifelong champion of working people.

As Labor finds new ways to organize, educate and support working families, we are also reaching out to working families through other markets.

History is a good teacher and to have a good outcome, there must be strong visionary leadership that believes in a culture where everyone has opportunity. At American Income our futures are full of opportunity and leadership.

Now it's our turn to leave our mark.

History

American Income is breaking records, and we are making history as we take our Company to our goal of 250 Million Net ALP. History is important to help us reach our goals because history is what got us to where we are today. As we continue to make history, we will continue to do what works and we will learn from both our successes and mistakes.

American Income's history is intertwined with organized labor. Our foundation was built on our relationship with the labor movement and the philosophy of "Be Union- Buy Union". For over 50 years, local unions have made our supplemental insurance available for their members through the AIL/NILICO Program.

We proudly support organized labor and play a role in its history. We can feel good that we will be remembered as a company that supports a working family agenda. We support their causes through both financial support and activism, in both good times and bad.

Just this Labor Day, we were recognized by American Rights at Work in their 2009 Labor Day List as a company who walks the walk of workers' rights.

Organized labor is making history as well; they are currently working to protect their members during some of the greatest economic challenges of our lifetimes. They will long be remembered for this fight and how they stood up for the rights of working families through contract negotiations, by supporting health care for all and fighting for fair legislation like the Employee Free Choice Act.

The National AFL-CIO Convention is being held in Pittsburgh, a city filled with labor history. September 13th – 17th the delegates will elect a new slate of AFL-CIO Officers and Executive Council Members. As this history unfolds, Roger, Denise and Jules will attend this historic convention as John Sweeney, the current president of the AFL-CIO, retires and the new leadership Richard Trumka (running for president),

Got Stress?? Rethink, Regroup and Succeed

As I travel and speak at Agency Meetings and at Leadership Development classes, one of the earliest statements that I make is to acknowledge how hard you must work and what obstacles you must overcome to capitalize on "Opportunity Unlimited" and enjoy its success. From my perspective, the key is dedication. Because our agencies do not force a salary, agents, managers and SGAs alike must "bring it" everyday to make a living.

While indeed those on commission do have increased opportunity at achieving financial prosperity, there are also no guarantees.

Then again, you must be on a commission-paid compensation system in order to capitalize the true financial prosperity you desire. Those who are paid salary or hourly have different goals and ambitions than those who are motivated by money, like us. To us, it would be demotivating to report to work on Monday already knowing how much your paycheck would be on Friday. Commission-based earnings are the unlimited opportunity to bring you financial freedom.

And that's the heart of the challenge.

Each day is an opportunity to reach a new summit of your Opportunity Unlimited. Want to "bring it" everyday? Consider a few things that can help you sort what's important, increase your productivity and clear your mind.

1. Manage your time effectively. Remember, it's your time. You have a mission. As a personal producer at AIL/NILICO, your three primary fundamentals are appointment setting, presentations and business conservation. If you're not performing one of those three tasks, the odds at achieving your desired financial prosperity diminish. Review the task at hand, and see if what you're doing fits into one of those three fundamental categories. If it doesn't, end it.

2. Accept what you cannot change. I'm sure you've read this many times before. It's very true. If you can't change what you don't like, why spend the time and energy trying?

3. Know your limitations. Know the limitations of helping others. Our Company fosters a helping environment, but many of us help by giving, sometimes because we have an inability to say no. While we want to help everyone, it is important to learn to be assertive and say no without upsetting or offending.

4. Find out what causes you stress. If you look at what specifically interferes with productivity, you will learn to avoid those scenarios. Certainly, stress is an obstacle. Normally, stress is caused by too many things to do with too little time to perform them. In this case, it's not the act as much as the lack of a time frame. Consider getting up earlier instead of staying up later, prioritize what's important and do not allow outside influences to get in your way.

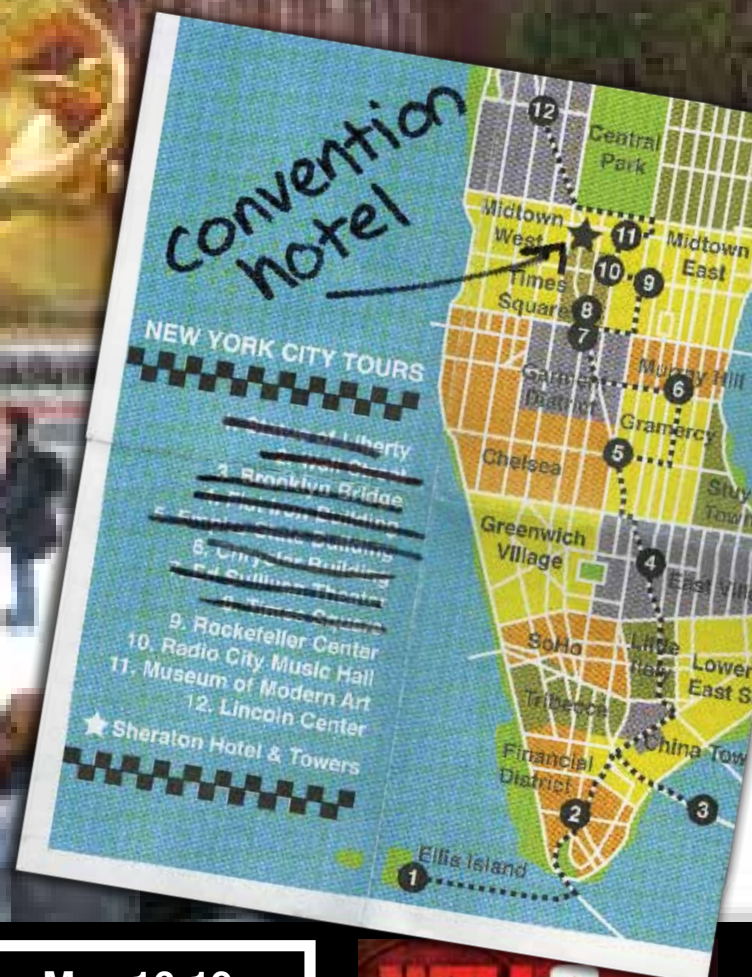

5. Adopt a healthier lifestyle. I recently started going to the gym regularly. I hadn't gone to the gym since I stopped coaching high school basketball almost 15 years ago. After five months, while the effects may not be visual (LOL), they certainly are mental. The feeling I have of putting time into myself daily makes me feel good and enables productivity.

6. Try to see things differently. If something is bothering you, make an honest attempt to see things differently. Involving someone else from the outside can help give you a fresh perspective. Many times you have a concept of the solution, but collaboration permits beneficial exchanges to your own outlook.

7. Gauge Relativity. I've known people who seem to have an internal "stress cylinder" that is constantly filled. These people always have something to worry about. Throughout the day, more stuff gets thrown in the cylinder, and it automatically gets sorted from the least stressful to the most stressful. For example, say your car battery is no good. Your tires also need a little air. Of course, the tires are not the priority; instead, it's fixing the battery and getting the car to start. The battery situation is a stressful hassle and ranks at the top of the stress cylinder. So, you get it charged and get it out of the "stress cylinder". Immediately, the lack of air in the tires floats to the top ...and its level of stress raises to where the battery situation was...because the battery situation no longer exists. A vicious cycle of one stressful incident replacing another. Keep what's important in perspective. It's just air. If it wasn't stressful before the battery was fixed, it shouldn't be now.

These are just a few things to help you organize your pursuit of Opportunity Unlimited. The possibilities to improve what you do every day are endless. You have a tough job. It's not easy...and it's not supposed to be. Clearing your mind and reorganizing your approach will help you become more productive and find success.
